Preface

This, the sixth edition of the Index to Federal Programs and Services, includes information on 128 federal departments, agencies, and Crown corporations. Some organizations, such as the Privy Council Office, are not included here since their activities affect the general public only through other departments. Some other organizations that are included do not necessarily provide a direct service to the public, but are involved in activities that impinge on the public in some way.

Part I contains descriptions of programs and services provided by the federal government. Part II consists of addresses and phone numbers (where available) of federal, regional, district, and branch offices serving the public throughout Canada.

The section on page 12 describes the various elements of this book and provides a detailed explanation of how to use it most effectively.

Because of the extensive changes in government programs and departments within the last few months, publication of this year's edition of the Index was delayed in order to incorporate as much of the new information as possible. At time of printing certain organizations were still in transition (for example see Supply and Services Canada and Foreign Investment Review Agency): in these cases the changes are indicated, but detailed information was not yet available.

As in previous years, the Index could not have been produced without the co-operation and unflagging assistance of the department, agency and corporation co-ordinators who provided the original material and who worked so diligently to ensure accuracy of content and to provide the editors with new information right up to the last minute. We would like to express our appreciation and thanks for their continued support.

Final update was 8 February 1985.

How to use the Index

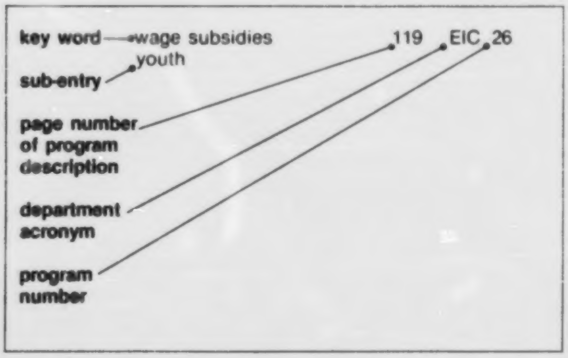
The Index is a compendium of information on various federal services, including program descriptions, telephone services, and government office listings. Each section is complete in itself, but is also linked to the information in other parts of the book.

In Part I, descriptions of programs and services provided by federal departments, agencies, Crown corporations, and Canada's judiciary are grouped by organization. Each section begins with the head office address, a list of cities where the regional offices of that organization are found, a general inquiry number, the title of the minister or agent through whom that organization reports to Parliament, and a brief summary of the organization's responsibilities.

The individual program descriptions include an inquiry number (where applicable), a cross reference to the regional and district offices in Part II and, if there is toll-free service for the program, a cross reference to the toll-free telephone service section, page 16.

A subject index provides a direct route to a specific program description by topic, eliminating the need to know which program is administered by which department. The key word gives the page number of the program description, the department acronym, and the program number.



Telephone referral services throughout Canada are listed by province on page 15.

A toll-free telephone service section (page 16) lists all toll-free services available throughout the country for specific programs, such as CHIP, or for general information on departments, as for Elections Canada.

Part II of the Index to Federal Programs and Services 1985 contains a listing of all federal government offices in Canada to which the public has direct access. The list is broken down into the 12 provincial and territorial sections of the country, arranged alphabetically from Alberta to Yukon Territory. The office addresses are listed alphabetically by department within each town, also arranged alphabetically. The addresses include, wherever possible, the department's name, branch, or division name, street address, postal address, postal code, and telephone number. If there is no office in your town, consult the toll-free telephone or telephone referral service listings.

The city index is on page 297. This is an alphabetical listing by organization and branch, of the cities and towns where there are federal offices. For example, to find the nearest Transport Canada Coast Guard office, check the list under that department's name and branch for the town nearest you. Then turn to the town in the relevant provincial section for the full address.

Following the guidelines laid down by the Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names, the alphabetical arrangement of town and city names is letter by letter: for example, Biggar comes before Big River; Lac-Mégantic before La Malbaie. Towns beginning with Saint, St, Sainte, Ste are all interfiled alphabetically by letter, with the contractions being treated as if they were spelled out; for example, St Andrews precedes Saint John and St Stephen; Sainte-Thérèse precedes Saint-Eustache.

Part II of the Index also includes a list, by province and town, of the authorized bookstore agents of government of Canada publications see page 547.

The following is an example from Part I showing how it relates to the other sections of the book and how it can lead to further information.

The Court Martial Appeal Court of Canada is a superior court of record constituted by Parliament under Section 101 of the Constitution Act, 1867, for the better administration of the laws of Canada. Its members are judges of the various superior courts of criminal jurisdiction throughout Canada, as defined by the Criminal Code and the Federal Court Act. Each judge is separately appointed to the Court by order in council and holds a patent issued under the Great Seal of Canada.

CMAC 1
The jurisdiction of the Court Martial Appeal Court is defined by Part IX of the National Defence Act. The Court exercises the same jurisdiction in appeals from convictions by courts martial as do provincial and territorial courts of appeal from criminal convictions, except that authority to deal with an appeal in respect of severity of sentence is reserved to the Minister of National Defence. There is no right to appeal an acquittal by a court martial. An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada is allowed, by leave of that court or where there has been a dissenting judgement, on any question of law. The Court's Rules of Practice and Procedure, while conforming as closely as possible to those of the provincial and territorial courts of appeal in criminal appeals, are of necessity different in a number of important particulars. Under the Rules, the Chief Justice may authorize appointment of counsel for an appellant at public expense. Any member in good standing of a law society in Canada is entitled to appear before the Court, as are Officers of the Judge Advocate General's Branch of the Department of National Defence.

The Court sits as a panel of three judges and may sit outside as well as within Canada, in any place with suitable court facilities, and as near as possible to locations convenient to appellants and their counsel.

The officers, clerks, and employees of the Federal Court of Canada also perform the duties of their respective offices for the Court Martial Appeal Court of Canada.

It consists of the Federal Court of Appeal, with the Chief Justice and nine judges, and the Federal Court - Trial Division, with the Associate Chief Justice and 13 judges, two of which have elected to take supernumerary status. The Federal Court of Canada may sit anywhere in the country at times arranged as nearly as possible to suit the convenience of the litigants. It does not hold trials or hearings on a circuit basis. In Ottawa, sittings of the Federal Court are held in the Supreme Court of Canada Building. The judges' offices are in the same building.

Appeals from decisions of the Court may be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada, once leave is granted by the Federal Court of Appeal or the Supreme Court.

FCTC 2

The Federal Court - Trial Division has jurisdiction in cases in which relief is claimed against the Crown, and in cases in which relief is claimed by the Crown or the Attorney General of Canada. The Trial Division also has jurisdiction to hear proceedings for prohibition, mandamus, certiorari, injunction, or declaratory relief against federal boards, commissions, and other tribunals; and for interprovincial and federal-provincial disputes. It also conducts hearings on industrial property proceedings; admiralty proceedings; income tax and estate tax appeals; citizenship appeals; and claims for relief, if there is no other Canadian court that has such jurisdiction.

FCTC 3

Registry: the Federal Court of Canada has one Registry for the entire country, which is responsible for the administration of legal proceedings within the Court. It is composed of the principal office in Ottawa and 16 local offices. Eight of these are staffed by employees of the Federal Court of Canada. The remaining 8 are administered by provincial and territorial court employees. In Ottawa the Registry is located in the Federal Court Annex Building.

Export Development Corporation (EDC)

Head Office
151 O'Connor Street
(PO Box 655)
Ottawa, Ontario
K1P 5T9

Regional Offices: Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto, Montréal, Halifax.

Information: Ottawa/Hull (613) 237-2570; regional offices see Part II under cities listed above.

The EDC is a Crown corporation that provides a wide range of insurance and bank guarantee services to Canadian exporters and arranges credit for foreign buyers in order to facilitate and develop export trade.
Minister responsible:
Minister for International Trade

EDC 1
Financing (medium- and long-term): the EDC will lend up to 85 per cent of the contract price of an export of capital goods and services, provided the buyer is credit worthy, his country is an acceptable risk, and the Canadian content of the export is at least 60 per cent. Financing services include loans to foreign buyers, allocations under lines of credit with banks or financial institutions that re-lend to buyers, and note purchases. The EDC also provides loan guarantees to banks and financial institutions that lend money to foreign buyers to enable them to make such purchases. In all cases, these services provide exporters with what are, in effect, cash sales.
As a result of the recent amendments to the Export Development Act, EDC is now able to extend credit directly to Canadian Exporters who purchase Canadian goods for use or lease outside Canada. Previously, the corporation was restricted to making loans exclusively to a foreign customer.

EDC 2
Guarantees (performance and bid security): the Corporation provides 100 per cent unconditional guarantees to banks that provide performance and bid-related securities in the form of an irrevocable letter of credit issued to a foreign buyer on behalf of a Canadian exporter.

EDC 3
Guarantees (supplier and buyer credit): the Corporation issues 100 per cent unconditional guarantees to banks and other lenders who provide non-recourse financing in respect of an EDC-insured sale of capital goods (supplier credit), or who make loans to buyers of Canadian capital goods and services (buyer credit).

EDC 4
Insurance (assignment of exporter's rights and obligations): the Export Development Corporation normally will agree to pay any proceeds payable under an exporter's policy to a bank or other financial organization in order to facilitate the exporter's banking arrangements. Also, if a bank or other financial institution agrees to purchase an insured foreign receivable from the exporter, EDC is prepared to agree to the assignment of the exporter's rights and obligations under the policy to the bank or financial institution.

EDC 5
Insurance (consortium): Export Development Corporation insurance is available to cover individual members of an exporting consortium against a call on a performance security due to the failure of one or more other members of the consortium to perform.

EDC 6
Insurance (export credit): Export Development Corporation credit insurance is available to cover nonpayment by foreign buyers owing to commercial or political events beyond the control of the seller or buyer (insolvency, default, cancellation of import or export licenses, foreign exchange blockages, and so on). In certain instances, cover for political risk only can be issued.

EDC 7
Insurance (foreign investment): Export Development Corporation insurance is available to cover Canadian foreign investments against three broad political risks - inconvertibility of or the inability to repatriate capital and earnings, expropriation, and war or revolution.

EDC 8
Insurance (performance security): Export Development Corporation insurance is available to cover an exporter against a wrongful call of a performance security, the security being in the form of an irrevocable letter of credit provided by the exporter's bank in favour of the buyer.

EDC 9
Insurance (predisbursement): Export Development Corporation insurance is available to cover the failure of a buyer or borrower to authorize EDC to disburse loan funds in payment for goods produced or services rendered.

EDC 10
Insurance (surety bonds): Export Development Corporation insurance is available to cover a portion of the risk assumed by a domestic surety company providing a performance bond to a foreign buyer.
